Crude feud

National Energy Board decision.

Londoners among those who object to oilsands crude flowing farther east

ANGELA MULLINS

angela.mullins@metronews.ca

Environmental activists are calling on federal politicians to speak out against a National Energy Board decision that would see oil from Western Canada pumped toward the East Coast through a pipeline that passes north of London.

Six people protested outside London North Centre MP Susan Truppe's constituency office on Monday, barring her staff from entering. The group left peacefully after police were called. No charges were laid.

Environmentalists such as David McColl, 24, of London, point to several problems with the Energy Board's decision, released Friday afternoon. Extracting more crude from the oilsands is bad for the environment, partly because the extraction process causes more climate change compared to other types of oil, said McColl, a member of Climate Justice London, which organized the protest.

He and others are also worried about the structural integrity of the Enbridge Inc. pipeline that would carry the crude, and they say the Energy Board did not respect Six Nations rights in the decision-making process. The line crosses Six Nations land.

"It's important to consider that the National Energy Board is supposedly independent and has a mandate to make sure it's in the public interest," McColl said. "Unfortunately, they basically ignored several factors."

"We really feel like, if you took (all the) factors into consideration, you'd be forced to admit the decision should be re-examined from a different point of view."

Truppe wasn't available to meet McColl's group on Monday, but a meeting is being scheduled, said Kelly Shute, Truppe's senior constituency assistant.

Labour Minister Lisa Raitt, a former natural resources minister, has called the Energy Board's decision "quite important" for improving pipeline access to Canada's coasts and customers in the U.S. The move reflects what customers want, Raitt said, noting that East Coast customers will be able to receive cheaper crude from North America rather than importing it from abroad.

Zip.ca kiosks land in London

Rental service. London movie lovers have more options now that firm has added two self-serve machines

JOHN MATISZ
john.matisz@metronews.ca

The way people rent movies is vastly different than it was even five years ago.

Look no further than the success of Netflix, the subsequent fall of Blockbuster and its video-store peers, as well as the innovation of self-serve rental kiosks — which are now in London.

Zip.ca has plopped two rental kiosks in local grocery stores over the past few weeks.

"We're leading into a very automated world," said Christina Beavis, general manager of Zip.ca. "People aren't afraid to use machines now, and that's what people are comfortable with."

The pair of seven-foot red boxes — situated near each store's exit doors with hopes of achieving maximum value — are a portion of a "full roll-out" from Zip.ca that includes machines in Guelph and Kitchener.

The new presence in southwestern Ontario will complement successful launches in Ottawa and Toronto in 2010, Beavis says, adding the days of handing over premier dollar to rent movies are increasingly becoming a thing of the past.

"For me, personally, it's hard to swallow spending $8 to rent a movie," Beavis said.

Customers can rent up to five movies for $1 to $2 each at the kiosks.

Tanya Morrison, a manager at Metro grocery store, says it's been a hit amongst shoppers so far, namely parents of young children.

"Kids really like it. They say, 'Mommy, mommy, can I get one?'" she said. "The timing is right because it's the summer and they're not in school."

The one catch about the kiosks is that they require payment via credit card.

"There's the odd market that won't work out," Beavis said about the limited payment options. "As long as we're dealing with your typical family, it's not a problem."

Beavis adds Londoners should expect a couple more kiosks to land in town over the next few months.

Bethany's Hope. Rock the Park raises $300K

It's going to take more than a little pouring rain and scorching heat to stop Londoners from rocking.

The ninth annual Rock the Park music festival ended Saturday night, and despite the weather, officials say it was a resounding success. More than 25,000 attended the three-day concert in Harris Park, and approximately $300,000 was raised for Bethany's Hope Foundation, which funds metabolic leukodystrophy research.

"We were amazed and thrilled that our audience and our fans supported us the way they have, through the hot, humid heat on Saturday afternoon and the downpours on Friday night," said festival organizer Brad Jones.

Jones started the festival when he saw how the charity was struggling to raise money, and is thrilled with the result. "Here we are nine years later — 10 years after the inception of it — and we've raised over $1.5 million for Bethany's Hope and we're real proud of it," he said.

The festival has always focused on classic rock and continued that tradition, featuring Slash, the Steve Miller Band and Boston. One thing changed though: This time, Jones said, Londoners were thirstier.

12 bands played the three-day festival.

"They drank a lot more beer and coolers this year," he said, noting alcohol sales at the festival had dropped with the economy in 2008. "I think people are slowly gaining confidence that they're going to have jobs to go to on Monday morning, and for that reason they'll go out and spend $40 at the bar."

Like many other outdoor concerts, Rock the Park exceeded the city's 90-decibel noise bylaw, meaning organizers will lose their $500 deposit. Numbers were not available Monday, but Jones said he knew the noise limit had already been broken Thursday.

As for Rock the Park 10, Jones kept mum on details, but hinted a "best of" show, showcasing the best acts from the previous nine festivals, could be in the works.

Teachers' contracts

School boards told to strike deals

Ontario's Liberal government will use legislation if necessary to make sure the new school year is not delayed by labour problems, Education Minister Laurel Broten vowed Monday.

"We will not allow the start of school year to be delayed or interrupted," Broten said as she admitted the province had given up hope of reaching new contracts with most teachers' unions.

It'll be up to school boards to bargain local agreements based on the one contract the province did manage to secure, with the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association, she said. That deal allows younger teachers to get raises, but freezes salaries for the majority.

"It is not the practice generally to enter into local bargaining over the summer during August, but my message to them is that we need to see local agreements be put in place during the course of this month," Broten said Monday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Londoners are invited to an open house Wednesday at the YMCA's centre branch (382 Waterloo St.) featuring food, music, demonstrations, and chats with visitors from Chile and Korea. The open house runs from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

As part of their global focus, YMCA of Western Ontario is hosting children and youth from Chile and Korea for part of the summer. During their visit, the youth ambassadors from Chile and Korea will live at YMCA Camp Queen Elizabeth and take part in YMCA projects and initiatives in London and the surrounding area.

Day trips are planned to give the children a taste of Canadian life, including a pancake breakfast, barbecues, and trips to Niagara Falls, Stratford Festival and the Archaeological Museum. METRO

Dark Knight shooting suspect slapped with 24 murder raps

Mental state of mind.

Experts say it's not a question of guilt, but whether or not James Holmes is insane

Prosecutors on Monday charged a former neuroscience graduate student with 24 counts of murder and 116 counts of attempted murder in the Colorado theatre rampage that once again opened a national debate over guns. Legal analysts expect the case to be dominated by arguments over his sanity.

James Holmes appeared just as dazed as he did in his first court appearance a week ago, but at one point he exchanged a few words with one of his attorneys. Some victims and family members again watched him in the packed courtroom, and before the hearing some clasped their hands and bowed their heads as if in prayer.

The July 20 attack at a midnight showing of the new Batman movie left 12 people dead and 58 others injured.

Holmes also faces one count of possession of explosives. After his arrest outside the theatre, police said they

On Friday, court papers revealed that Holmes was seeing a psychiatrist at the university. But they did not say how long he was seeing Dr. Lynne Fenton and if it was for a mental illness. An online résumé listed schizophrenia as one of her research interests.

Distracted walking problem growing step by step

In this July 10 photo, pedestrians cross K Street in downtown Washington. Experts say texting while walking is becoming a major problem.

PABLO MARTINEZ MONSIVAIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

On city streets, in suburban parking lots and in shopping centres, there is usually someone strolling while talking on a phone, texting with his head down, listening to music, or playing a video game. The problem isn't as widely discussed as distracted driving, but safety experts say the danger is real.

Reports of injuries to distracted walkers treated at hospital emergency rooms have more than quadrupled in the past seven years and are almost certainly underreported. There has been a spike in pedestrians killed and injured in traffic accidents, but there is no reliable data on how many were distracted by electronics.

"We are where we were with cellphone use in cars 10 years or so ago. We knew it was a problem, but we didn't have the data," said Jonathan Atkins, deputy executive director of the Governors Highway Safety Association, which represents U.S. highway safety offices.

State and local officials are struggling to figure out how to respond, and in some cases asking how far government should go in trying to protect people from themselves.

In Delaware, highway safety officials opted for a public education campaign, placing decals on crosswalks and sidewalks at busy intersections.

Philadelphia officials are drafting a safety campaign that will be aimed in part at pedestrians who are looking at their devices instead of where they're going. As an April Fool's Day joke with a serious message, city officials also taped off an "e-lane" for distracted pedestrians on a sidewalk outside downtown office buildings.

Apple, Samsung spar over patents

Court case. Jury of 10 will be selected this week before opening statements begin in a trial expected to last more than a month

With billions of dollars and control of the U.S. smartphone and computer tablets markets at stake, jury selection began Monday in a closely watched trial between two of the world's leading tech companies over patents.

Samsung countered that Apple is doing the stealing and that some of the technology at issue — such as the rounded rectangular designs of smartphones and tablets — have been industry standards for years.

The case is just the latest skirmish between the two companies over product designs. A similar trial began last week, and the two companies have been fighting in courts in the U.K. and Germany.

WHY PUT PRIVATE PAIN IN THE PUBLIC EYE?

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca/shesays

We all make mistakes in our 20s. Luckily, most of us don't have to live out those youthful bad decisions on the front page of People magazine. Kristen Stewart — of red carpet grimacing and Twilight fame — is not as fortunate as us regular folk.

Last week, the 22-year-old starlet was outed in a very public manner for cheating on her long-time boyfriend Robert Pattinson with married Snow White and the Huntsman director Rupert Sanders.

Sadly 'Robsten' — perhaps the most overreaching celebrity couple portmanteau of all time — is no more. But while Twi-hard fan girls are mourning the end of an on-screen vampire romance turned true love, the rest of us are wondering, why on Earth we should care at all?

Oh that's right, because Stewart and her philandering partner released PUBLIC statements of apology, as if we are the ones being directly impacted by this made-in-Hollywood affair.

It seems confusing to me that stars in the spotlight — who usually demand privacy in times of great stress — would validate the role that these gossip magazines play in their personal relationships by issuing apologetic press releases. I think both Stewart and Sanders' statements have everything to do with creating publicity and very little to do with salvaging their respective relationships.

Unfortunately, overt performances of romance gone awry aren't confined to the world of celebrity couples.

I'll confess that I've been there. Following an Earth-shattering teenage breakup, I spent about a month adorning my MSN screen name with sensitive song lyrics by courtesy for my entire pre-Facebook social network to see.

And while these barefaced displays of pubescent melancholy might be forgivable from a 16-year-old, I still see the same sort of emotional exhibitionism from my peers a decade later.

I see it all the time, people baiting friends and followers with attention-seeking updates on their private-life dramas. Do you really find solace in smearing your broken heart all over your Facebook profile? Does tweeting about newly 'single and fabulous' status offer you real emotional validation? Is it really necessary to Instagram a photo of yourself with downcast eyes and a solemn pout with #Breakup attached?

What does it say about us as a society that we not only have a schadenfreude-esq obsession with celebrity couple breakdowns, but that we feel the need to imitate their penchant for over-sharing in our own online worlds?

We should probably leave the brazen theatrics to shameless reality stars and teenagers with raging hormonal levels. Remember, not every emotional meltdown warrants a press release, at least not in the 'real' world.

Le Havre

Director. Aki Kaurismäki

Stars. André Wilms, Blondin Miguel, Jean-Pierre Darroussin

Le Havre is an exceeding droll comedy from Finnish master Aki Kaurismäki, whose dark worldview is balanced by a deep empathy for his blue-collar characters. Charming in its retro manners, cares and colours — while at the same time contemporary in its grasp of immigration and poverty issues — the film is set in the French port city of the title, a place where goods and people are constantly shifting. André Wilms stars as wily old shoeshiner Marcel, who dodges cops and creditors as he cheerily dispenses polish and eccentric home-spun philosophy out of the main railway station. Marcel's bonhomie is put to the test by a big event: a group of African stowaways, illegal immigrants all, have been discovered inside a container on the Le Havre dock. One of them, a young pre-teen named Idrissa (Blondin Miguel), manages to evade police and port authorities, and he's now being sought. Will Marcel squeal or assist? As good as the cast is, it's the deceptively passive Miguel who anchors the film.

There aren't a whole lot of road romances where North Bay is the destination, and after this there aren't likely to be many more. A miscast and mismatched Rossif Sutherland and Karine Vanasse stretch credulity at every quirk-filled turn as they follow a bag of loot and chase family problems on the long trek from New York to Ontario's "Gateway to the North." Sutherland plays a Wall Streeter disillusioned upon turning 30. Vanasse plays the bar hook-up who becomes the reason for the road trip. The eye-rolling script is the main problem.

If it ain't broke don't fix it, says No.1 CBS

Television Critics Association press tour. Network head touts first-place success, talks new and returning shows

AMBER RAY

Metro World News in New York

As head of the top-rated broadcast network, Nina Tassler, President of CBS Entertainment, didn't have many announcements to make when addressing journalists at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., other than one clear message: The network is on top, and plans to stay there.

"We're No. 1 in viewers. We're No. 1 in upfront revenue. We're No. 1 in Emmy nominations," Tassler said. "Good performance, good business, and outstanding quality on the screen. I'm really proud of the environment we've created for launching and sustaining hit shows, from development, to scheduling, to marketing, to current programming," she added.

In a "not broke, not gonna fix it" move, the CBS slate this fall includes just four new series: Elementary, a modern take on Sherlock Holmes; Vegas, about the politics and crime that shaped the Strip in the 1960s; Made in Jersey, a crime procedural following a Jersey girl working her way up at a high-end Manhattan law firm; and the buddy comedy Partners.

Regarding the pickup of Elementary at a time when there are many other versions of Sherlock Holmes on the pop culture scene (the BBC series Sherlock and the Sherlock Holmes movie franchise included), Tassler said, "when you have an opportunity to build a show around one of the greatest detectives in all of literature, you're going to jump at that opportunity."

She called the BBC series, which airs on PBS in the States, "extraordinary," and is confident "there's plenty of room for another Holmes in our world."

When questioned about Vegas and the recent failure of other period dramas on broadcast networks (The Playboy Club, Pan Am) Tassler insisted her '60s-set series goes beyond a nostalgia factor. It is foremost about the fascinating character of real-life Sheriff Ralph Lamb, who fought to bring order to the mob-run casino scene, she said.

"The fact that it was set in the '60s certainly informed the show, but it's not about the '60s, per se," Tassler said. "It's about these two forces that were battling for the heart and soul of Las Vegas at a very key moment in the history of the city."

Most questions posed to the CBS exec, however, involved returning series.

Comedy. One of the biggest questions posed to Tassler was about renewing How I Met Your Mother and allowing the creators to tell the entire story. Here's what she had to say: "Well, they had an incredible year last year. We've got a great relationship with (creators) Craig (Thomas) and Carter (Bays), and certainly they have a very strategic wrap-up to the show. They know we want the show to come back next year. We are having conversations right now about extending it. We want the show to come back next year."

Between texting, between online notification, between Facebook technology, I mean, literally, we do everything possible, and will continue to do everything, to make sure that the audience knows that the show will be on later as a result of (football)."

On cancelling CSI: Miami ...

"Saying goodbye to a CSI this year was — it was a very big deal. That show has been extraordinarily successful for us. So it was a difficult decision. What we looked at — it was a jump ball. What we looked at was Friday night versus Sunday night. We looked at the flow on Friday night for New York versus Miami. So it was a very tough choice. But as I said, it was really a jump ball and just had to do with the schedule."

... And changes to CSI: New York:

"We've added Natalie Martinez to the cast. The show has, as I said, a lot more humour and a lot more New York, fun, event-type stories."

Kristen Bell ALL PHOTOS GETTY

Bell and her beau have a workplace romance

For Kristen Bell, teaming up again with fiancé Dax Shepard for their new movie, Hit and Run, was something of a no-brainer. “We realized we’re severely co-dependent,” Bell tells Us Weekly. “It’s not just like you’re caught in the house with your significant other for six weeks and you’re both doing different things and feel like you’re in each other’s way. We actually had the same goal and we really, really, really wanted the best for the script Dax had written. Because we had the same mutual goal, it felt shared.” So how did she get the part in Shepard’s film, exactly?

“On this project, I was sleeping with the director, the writer and the lead actor, so I spread myself real thin,” she jokes.

Topher Grace

Sophia Bush says 70s star is just a buddy

Sophia Bush was spotted grabbing coffee with Topher Grace in West Hollywood last week, but the newly single actress wants to make it clear that the two are not dating, she tells Us Weekly. “Topher has been one of my dearest friends for six years,” says Bush, who’s starring in Partners, a new TV comedy this fall.

“We have coffee all the time and he is actually a great sounding board for me with sort of how to be prepared with all things sitcom.” Bush recently split from her boyfriend of six years — and One Tree Hill co-star — Austin Nichols. She’d previously been married to another of the show’s stars, Chad Michael Murray.

Farrell living the simple, boring life

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Colin Farrell has been behaving himself for years now, doing just enough films to stay relevant while plugging just enough charities to seem rich and enlightened.

But while we may forget his rehab-and-sex-tape days, Farrell is surprised his career survived them. “I had burned so many bridges in the film industry that I couldn’t get a f—king meeting,” the actor tells Men’s Health.

You can catch him this weekend in the remake of Total Recall, a role he was able to land thanks to his fairly healthy new lifestyle.

“I don’t put the same level of energy into healthy living as I did into unhealthy living, but I eat really well, drink loads of green tea and take a s—t load of vitamins,” he tells the magazine. “It’s so f—king boring. Life has mutated to take on this sweet simplicity that I am really f—king OK with.”

Colin, if you want in on our Pier 1-Target double-header this weekend, say the word.

Reality bites: Twilight stars will have to reunite

In the wake of Kristen Stewart’s apology for cheating on Robert Pattinson, the Twilight co-stars are reportedly not speaking to each other, according to People magazine. Sources say both parties have left the L.A. home they share and are living elsewhere separately. “I’m not sure they’ll be able to recover from this,”

a source tells the magazine, adding that Pattinson “is heartbroken and angry.” They’ll have to face each other soon enough, though, as they’re set to be co-presenters at MTV’s Video Music Awards on Sept. 6, just as promotional duties begin in earnest for the final Twilight film, out in November.

Brand backs up fellow funnymen

Comedians Dane Cook and Daniel Tosh have drawn fire this month for jokes about rape and the recent Colorado movie theater shooting, respectively. But who is the one person they didn’t offend? Russell Brand. “I don’t know about what Dane Cook or Daniel Tosh said, but I know that they are comedians, and I know they’re nice human beings, so I don’t imagine that they had any intention other than to elicit laughter from their fellow human beings, as is their job,” Brand told reporters at the TCA panel for Brand X, his cable series. “I don’t think we should create a state where people are afraid to talk. That could have much worse consequences.”

Taking the guesswork out of emergency room wait times

Technology. Hospitals across Canada are using tools to help patients make informed decisions about making the trip

CELIA MILNE
life@metronews.ca

How long will I have to wait in the Emergency? The answer to that question may soon be at your fingertips.

One hospital in Ontario and several in Alberta now have websites that tell patients how long they'll wait for emergency care.

"Patients and families appreciate knowing in advance how long they'll have to wait to see a physician or nurse practitioner," says Don Shilton, president of St. Mary's General Hospital in Kitchener, the first Ontario hospital with the tool.

"This helps them plan their lives...whether to arrange child care or bring a book."

All hospitals across the country use a triage system to dictate which patients get seen first.

Those with a life-threatening illness or injury, such as a heart attack or major trauma from a car accident, will always get priority.

Those with less-urgent needs, such as tummy pain or an earache, will have to wait longer. The new tool tells you, with the click of a mouse, the average wait time for those with non-life-threatening problems.

"The time on the clock is updated every 20 minutes," says Shilton. "If people decide they don't want to wait, the tool also lists alternatives to the emergency department such as urgent care clinics."

He hopes other hospitals adopt the tool, so that patients can explore alternatives online.

The next step is developing a smart phone App that helps you find the closest emergency department, provide directions on how to get there and show how long you'll wait once you get there.

"I can see this being very helpful if you were in a different city or part of the province," says Shilton.

Hospitals in Edmonton and Calgary are using a similar tool, according to Healthycare.ca, an online health care magazine based at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto.

Your fave Japanese appetizer finds its way into tasty salad

Edamame Salad

This recipe serves four. LORELLA ZANETTI, FROM ROSE REISMAN'S COMPLETE LIGHT KITCHEN (WHITECAP BOOKS)

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

Edamame is all the rage today. These soy beans are a great source of protein, an excellent source of fibre and loaded with vitamins and minerals. You can eat them on their own or toss them into a salad.

1. Boil edamame beans just until bright green, approximately 3 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water.

Place in serving bowl.

2. In non-stick skillet sprayed with vegetable oil, sauté corn just until browned, approximately 5 minutes. Add to edamame along with water chestnuts, bell pepper, green onions and cilantro.

3. For dressing: Mix soy sauce, rice vinegar, sesame oil, honey, garlic and ginger and pour over salad. Garnish with toasted sesame seeds.

ROSE REISMAN'S COMPLETE LIGHT KITCHEN (WHITECAP BOOKS)

Ingredients

Salad

- 3 cups frozen edamame beans
- 1 cup canned corn kernels, drained
- 1/2 diced water chestnuts
- 1/2 cup diced red bell pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped green onions
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro

Dressing

- 2 tbsp soy sauce
- 1 1/2 tbsp rice vinegar
- 1 tbsp sesame oil
- 2 tsp honey
- 1 tsp crushed garlic
- 1/2 tsp minced ginger

Garnish

- 1 tsp toasted sesame seeds

Recent studies have shown that as little as 1/3 cup of beans can prevent or reduce peripheral artery disease (the first signs of heart disease). Well, if it's that easy...giddy up. Any pulse or dried bean will do but here are a few winners.

Highest Protein Bean: Soybeans

Choose whole, organic, frozen edamame beans, steam and salt them. Serve them as a snack or appetizer.

Highest Magnesium Beans: Adzuki Beans

This Japanese bean is worth searching for. It is delicious and ranks highest in many nutrients. Find it in canned form in Asian or health food stores. If you can't find it, navy beans come close. Add them to pastas and soups.

Easiest Bean: Lentil Hummus

Two tablespoons of this spread will do. Any hummus works but lentils are higher in fibre, folacin and iron. Baby carrots, anyone?

Healthy Carb Pasta Salad. Shirataki noodles star in fresh side dish

1. Line rimmed baking sheet with a clean kitchen towel.

2. In bowl, whisk yogurt, sour cream, Worcestershire sauce,

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup each plain fat-free Greek yogurt and low-fat sour cream
- 1 tsp Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 each tsp garlic powder, hot sauce, kosher salt
- Three 8-oz packages shirataki noodles
- 1/2 cup frozen peas
- 2 ears corn, husks removed
- 1 red bell pepper, cored and diced
- 1 small red onion, diced
- 1 pint cherry tomatoes, halved
- Ground black pepper

garlic powder, hot sauce, salt.

3. Drain noodles; place them in saucepan. Add enough water to cover by 1 inch, then bring to a boil over high heat. Boil 2 minutes. Add peas and return water to simmer, then drain and spread noodles and peas in an even layer on the prepared baking sheet. Transfer to freezer to cool and dry 10 minutes.

4. Cut kernels from ears of corn. To do so, one at a time stand each ear on wide end and use serrated knife to saw down the length of cob. Add kernels to yogurt-sour cream mix in bowl and mix well. Mix in bell peppers, onion and tomatoes.

5. Once noodles and peas have cooled, add to bowl and gently mix. Adjust seasoning with salt and pepper. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Combine bold flavours of corn, crab & pickled shallots

Ingredients

- 4 ears white sweet corn, husks removed
 - Zest and juice of 1 lemon
 - 1 tbsp Champagne vinegar
 - 1 clove garlic, grated
 - 5 tbsp olive oil
 - 1/2 lb jumbo lump crabmeat
 - Handful cherry tomatoes, halved
 - 1 English cucumber, skin on, halved lengthwise and sliced into half-moons
 - 1/4 cup pickled shallots (recipe follows)
 - 1 avocado, peeled, pitted and diced
 - Salt and black pepper
 - Aleppo pepper
 - Handful fresh basil leaves, torn into large pieces
 - Leaves from 1 branch fresh tarragon, torn
- Pickled Shallots
- 1 cup cider vinegar
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 2 tbsp sugar
 - 1/2 each tbsp mustard seeds, black peppercorns, coriander seed, fennel seed, guindilla pepper
 - 1 sprig fresh thyme
 - 1/2 sprig fresh dill
 - 1 clove garlic
 - 3 shallots

1. Bring pot of salt water to a boil. Add the corn and blanch for 2 minutes. Remove the corn from the water and set aside until cool enough to handle.

2. Once the corn can be handled, cut the kernels off the cobs. To do this, stand each ear on its wide end and saw down the length of the cob with a serrated knife. Turn and repeat until all of the kernels are removed. Set aside.

3. In a large serving bowl, combine the lemon zest and juice, the vinegar and garlic. Mix well, then whisk in the olive oil. Fold in the corn kernels, crabmeat, tomatoes, cucumber, pickled shallots and avocado, being careful as you mix so as not to mash the ingredients.

4. Season with salt, black pepper and Aleppo pepper, then garnish with fresh basil and tarragon.

5. Pickled Shallots: To make the pickling liquid, in a medium saucepan over high heat, combine the vinegar, water, sugar, mustard seeds, peppercorns, coriander, fennel, guindilla pepper, thyme, dill and garlic. Bring to a boil, then

The battles of the grill

Dialogue. Excerpt from Shut Up and Eat! takes humorous look at a conversation that many couples could have this summer

KATHY BUCKWORTH
life@metronews.ca

One of the great things about barbecuing is that it is normally relatively easy to suck the man of the house into actually cooking. Something to do with an open flame and the inherent explosive danger proves irresistible to these gullible fellows.

Of course, the big downside is because they have spent a good 20 minutes searing a steak, they expect to get the credit for the entire meal, which, by the way, consists of salad, potatoes, fruit and dessert, all of which has taken you about two hours to complete.

Personally, I try to find additional things for my husband to do while in the backyard manning the grill — including garbage clean up, putting the hose away, back-washing the pool, installing some fencing.... Be creative and see how far it takes you.

Also, be prepared for the following conversation:

Him: OK, honey, so I'll take care of dinner tonight. I picked up some steaks.

Me: Great. So what are we having with them?

Him: Potatoes and corn.

Me: You have that?

Him: We always have potatoes and corn in the house. (Sadly, we do.)

Me: OK, whatever.

Him: Right then, I'm starting up the barbecue.

Me: Yeah, listen, I only need about an hour to get the other stuff ready. You might want to wait.

Him: (Gone outside.)

Me: %^$&*"ng idiot.

Him: I'm ready for those steaks now.

Me: Fabulous. Hope they need about 45 minutes on the barbecue because that's how long the rest of the dinner is going to take. Hey, who's setting the table?

Him: (Back outside again, stopping only to grab a beer out of the fridge.)

Me: %^$&*"ng idiot. Kids, get in here and set the table and help me husk the corn!

Him: OK, we're almost done.

Me: Stupendous. Just cut my finger with a knife while trying to peel the potatoes because your idiot son used the potato peeler to whittle a stick last week. Oh, yeah. The corn is still hard and we've only found four forks.

Him: (Gone. The sound of a beer cap twisting can be heard from the deck.)

Me: ^&$^#"ng idiot. Ouch. Crap. Damn.

Him: And we're ready. Kids, dinner!

Me: What the hell are you doing? The potatoes are half raw, the water for the corn hasn't boiled yet and I'm still on hold with Telehealth to see about this red line that's travelling up my arm from the cut on my finger.

Him: Mmmmmmm. Now that's a steak. Your Dad knows how to cook, eh guys?

Rude surprise: French fed up with their own incivility

It's a July evening on the terrace of the legendary Cafe Flore. A coiffed woman sips chilled wine, another savours her chocolate éclair.

The one thing to complete a perfect picture of Parisian life? A dash of French rudeness. It comes from the waiter, who snootily turns away a group of tourists: "There's no point waiting," he shrugs, even though there are many empty tables. "No space outside."

Such rituals of rudeness have long been accepted by visitors as part of the price of enjoying such a beautiful city as Paris. But it seems the French themselves, who over centuries have turned rudeness into an art form, have become fed up with their own incivility, according to recent polls and publicity campaigns.

There's a fabled history of French rudeness from Napoleon, who called the English a "nation of shopkeepers," to former President Nicolas Sarkozy, who famously snarled at a voter: "Get lost, poor jerk."

Now, bad manners and aggressive behaviour top the list of causes of stress for the French, even higher than unemployment or the debt crisis, says pollster IPSOS.

A total of 60 per cent cited rudeness as their number one source of stress in a survey last year on social trends.

"We're so rude," admits 34-year-old French teacher Stephane Gomez, as he comes out of a Paris metro station. "France lacks the civic sense that you find in Anglo-Saxon countries."

"It's so easy to be polite, but we don't do it," says 30-year-old Zahia Sebah. "I never see someone give up their seat for an elderly person."

100% invested in the stock market? Spread some of that cash out

Alison's money rule.
Timing the stock exchange to perfection is probably as difficult as winning the lottery

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

A couple of days ago I got the kind of email I hate the most. If it had been snail mail I would have seen tear drops on the paper.

It was from a distraught woman in her mid-40s who was taking a beating in the stock market. Her portfolio had been 100 per cent invested in stocks (through mutual funds) and she flip-flopped back and forth between the US and Canadian market — losing both ways.

Now she's pulled all her money out of the market, paid deferred sales charge fees on her mutual funds, and is sitting on the sidelines waiting for the right moment to get back in. Essentially she is doubling down on a bad bet and she's almost certain to lose again.

I'd have no quarrel if she can't stomach the turmoil of the stock market. But if so she should put her money in GICs or a savings account. She won't make much money but she won't lose any either.

The simple fact is that the average investor cannot time the market and very few professionals can manage the trick either.

So what can you do? It's called asset allocation.

The task is to divide your money among equities (stocks), bonds and cash. Historically the equities provide growth over time. Bonds provide ballast because they churn out interest when the stock market goes down. Cash is for emergencies and it also will provide some interest income.

In numbers

9 per cent

The average annual return of investment grade corporate bonds over 20 years with interest re-invested.

A sample asset allocation might be 50 per cent equities, 40 per cent bonds and 10 per cent cash. The equities could be divided 25 per cent U.S. and 75 per cent Canada. Pick an allocation that works for you, your risk tolerance and your situation.

The next step is critical. Use new contributions or dividend and interest income to maintain your allocation. This is called rebalancing and it's the key to lowering risk and increasing return.

Unless you have an accurate crystal ball, correctly timing the stock market is less likely than winning the lottery.

JOHN MATISZ

For ex-Bluebird Duane Ward, the Toronto Blue Jays 2012 season is bringing back all the wrong memories.

"When you're fighting a man with one arm tied behind your back, it's kind of unfair," the 48-year-old said of the club's year-long battle with the injury bug.

In 1994, Ward — who played all but 10 games of his 462-game Major League Baseball career in a Toronto uniform — sat out the entire lockout-shortened season due to bicep tendinitis. The relief pitcher retired shortly after, playing only four more games.

Now playing the part of a full-time instructor for a Jays-themed summer baseball camp, the Park View, N.M., native says he feels the current squad's pain.

"I think once a rash of injuries hit it's like, 'How do I stop it?' Because it just starts snowballing," Ward said, referring specifically to Brandon Morrow's June 11 oblique strain. "Look at them right now, they've been hampered for a couple of months, but still only three games out of the extended wild card."

Canadian baseball fans have been starved for a taste of the post-season for 19 consecutive years. Ward's career peaked during the franchise's

The Jays brass, whether concentrated on a potential playoff berth or already planning for next year, is undoubtedly holding its collective breath right now, Ward says.

Tennis. Ontario's Raonic and Quebec's Wozniak dominate opening matches in London

It didn't take long for Canada's Milos Raonic to show his opponent what to expect in their first-round men's singles match at the London Games.

Raonic opened the match by firing an ace that hit the back fence in a heartbeat and left Tatsuma Ito completely flat-footed. The Japanese player never found an answer for the Canadian's booming serve, with Raonic posting a comfortable 6-3, 6-4 victory at the All England Club.

"I'm fortunate enough to play with a big enough game that most of my results are going to depend on me," Raonic said. "I feel like if I step it up, I will have an opportunity to win."

Raonic used ground strokes and mixed in some deft cut shots to prevent Ito from finding his rhythm. The Thornhill, Ont., native picked up an early break for a 3-1 lead and was never threatened the rest of the way.

"It was a perfect match to get into the tournament," said Canadian coach Martin Laurendeau. "He could work on his game and his patterns and make sure everything is nice and clean and he was able to do that convincingly."

Aleksandra Wozniak of Blainville, Que., also posted a straight-set victory in her opening women's singles match. She defeated Marina Erakovic of New Zealand 6-2, 6-1.

"It's my first Olympics and it's so different than any Grand Slam or any WTA tournament," Wozniak said. "Tennis is such an individual sport, but (here) it's like you play for your own country. So the first victory for sure, it's for Canada."

Toronto's Daniel Nestor and Vancouver's Vasek Pospisil won their opening men's doubles match later Monday. They beat Horia Tecau and Adrian Ungur of Romania 6-3, 7-6 (9).

"I'm playing with one of the best doubles players in the world," Pospisil said. "We get fired up and we play some of our best tennis."

Social media. Bailey lets Olympic spirit shine on Twitter

Donovan Bailey might be 16 years removed from Olympic glory, but that doesn't mean the former sprinter isn't paying attention to next generation of Canadian athletes.

The double gold medallist at the Atlanta Olympics sent out a message on his Twitter feed Monday to Canada's competitors at the London Games.

"Don't let small minds convince you that your dreams are too big! Go Canada let's dominate!," tweeted Bailey, who set a then-world record time of 9.84 seconds in the men's 100-metre final in Atlanta.

Bailey, who was also part of Canada's gold-medal winning 4x100-metre men's team in 1996, added some encouraging words for tennis player Milos Raonic before his first-round match at the Games.

"Good luck to @milosraonic today in his first match at the Olympics!," Bailey wrote, before later congratulating No. 25-ranked player in the world's on his straight-sets win.

Agnel stealing spotlight in pool

Swimming. Big Frenchman cruises to second gold medal in 200-metre free event Yannick Agnel is turning into a giant-beater. Actually, he is a giant.

At six-foot-five, the Frenchman has used his extra-long frame to dominate on consecutive nights in the Olympic pool.

First came his come-from-behind anchor leg to push ahead of Ryan Lochte and the Americans in the 4x100 free-style relay on Sunday. Then on Monday, Agnel routed a stellar field by nearly two seconds to win the 200 free individual event.

Agnel led from start to finish and clocked one minute, 43.14 seconds for the best time ever in a textile suit, a whopping 0.72 ahead of Michael Phelps' 2007 mark.

Defending silver medallist Park Tae-hwan of South Korea and 400 free champion Sun Yang of China shared silver in 1:44.93, while world champion Lochte finished fourth and world-record holder Paul Biedermann of Germany was fifth.

With so many standouts, and despite Phelps' decision not to enter, the event was dubbed the "Race of the Century."

"I had to look twice at the scoreboard to be sure it was the right time. I had a race plan in my head, but this is above my expectations and hopes," Agnel said. "I worked on keeping my speed and putting all my guts into the last 50. I don't know what to say — it worked."

Camille Muffat gave France another gold in the women's 400 free on Sunday and France stands second to the United States in the swimming medals table.

France had never won more than one gold in the pool at an Olympics, and had a total of three golds before these games: Jean Boiteux won the 400 free at the 1952 Helsinki Games, Laure Manaudou won the 400 free at the 2004 Athens Games and Alain Bernard took the 100 free four years ago in Beijing. China's gymnastic dominance continues Chinese gymnast Chen Yibing performs on the rings during the gymnastic men's team final on Monday. The Chinese won their second straight Olympic title and third in four games. China's score of 275.997 points was more than four points better than Japan. Britain initially was announced as the silver medallist, setting off raucous celebrations at the O2 Arena, Princes William and Harry included. But Japan questioned the score of three-time world champion Kohei Uchimura on pommel horse, the very last routine. Instead of 13.466, he scored 14.166 — enough to move Japan from fourth to second with a total of 271.952. Britain was bumped down to bronze, while Ukraine dropped to fourth.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

The pace of life will pick up dramatically over the next few days and you could find yourself running all over the place. Make sure your efforts are for your own benefit. Don't spend every minute making other people happy.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Business issues and personal relationships will in some way be brought together today. You may have to spend a bit of money to attract what you need but it's OK, you can afford it.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Today's Venus-Saturn link will open your heart and make it easier for you to let those you love and admire know how much they mean to you. The depth of your feelings will no doubt surprise them.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You seem to have made a good impression on some of the people you work alongside and a promotion or salary increase is a distinct possibility. Don't be too modest about your talents: You deserve what you get.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Do you really believe in something, or did you copy a friend's idea because it sounded good at the time? If it's the latter today's Sun-Pluto link will force you to face up to its inconsistencies.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You'll be attracted to someone like the proverbial moth to a flame. Let's hope you don't get burned to a crisp! Feel with your heart by all means but think with your head too. It could save you sorrow.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Relationships of all kinds can be strengthened today. With Venus, your ruling planet, on good terms with Saturn in your sign it will be ridiculously easy to mend fences. So what are you waiting for?

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Someone is making life difficult for you. Why? Because it makes them feel good. Now that you know that, you should not feel guilty about hitting back.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Anyone who thinks you are easy to deceive had best think again because you are not only smarter than you look but are in no mood to deal with fools either. Sadly, there are a lot of them.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Some people have been taking advantage of you and it's time you did something about it. Today's cosmic alignment will help you get tough without causing too much of a stir. Drop a few hints. They'll get the message.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You will find it easy to win people over with your way of thinking, but is your way of thinking correct? At some stage you will encounter information that encourages you to look again at certain long-held beliefs.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Family and financial matters are under good stars today and if you go out of your way to make other people happy then you are more likely to be happy too. Your needs and their needs are not so far apart. SALLY BROMPTON
